Dear Customers,

DG containers at Modern Terminals

In view of recent incidents at container storage station in the China region causing serious fatal injuries and property damages and to ensure our full compliance to the Hong Kong Regulations, with immediate effects we will tighten the policy in storage of dangerous goods containers at Modern Terminals facility.

For your information, Regulation 177D of the Dangerous Goods (General) Regulations (Cap. 295B) is the provision relating to the storage of a freight container containing DG of certain categories. It is provided that storage of such dangerous goods containers at our terminal is allowed only for 72 hours from the freight container arriving at our terminal. For other categories of dangerous goods and subject to Regulation 10 which deals with Category 1, the maximum period of storage of the dangerous goods container is 21 days from the date of its arrival to our terminal. Thereafter, it must be removed to licenses premises. For details of the relevant regulations, please refer to the Dangerous Goods (General) Regulations (Cap. 295B).

We request your attention to ensure storage of dangerous goods containers at our facility is in compliance with the regulations mentioned above and remove DG containers from our facility upon expiration of free storage period of 72 hours for all dangerous goods cargoes. To raise the seriousness of the subject, we will implement additional overtime charges of 10 times of the regular overtime storage rate for all overstayed DG container with effects from September 24th, 2015.

Thank you for your attention.

Yours faithfully,
